Remember!

From the Desk
of the President

Hello all members and friends,

Don't forget, Masskrugstemmen winners, Carrie Miller and Charles R. Wirth will be representing Deutsches Haus in New York at the National Finals in September. Congratulations, let's cheer them on and Go Deutsches Haus.

WEINDORF, featuring wines and foods samplings from around the world, was very successful. The wine selections were great and the food exceptional. Thank you to all that attended, and a special thank you to the volunteers that made it happen.

Speaking of volunteers, the Oktoberfest is just around the corner. Mark your calendar, and to get you started, come to the Oktoberfest warmup on September 26th for food, fun, and music.

See you at the Haus!

Glück, Erfolg, Gesundheit
Mit freundlichen Grüßen

Keith Oldendorf

Regie Andres Veiel's multiple award winning 2024 Doku is the first look at the influential, controversial filmmaker's life using her own personal estate to take a closer look at her past. Riefenstahl's heirs' donation to the Prussian Cultural Heritage Foundation included over 7,000 boxes of scripts, letters, film notes, photos, super 8 recordings, cassette tapes, phone recordings & memoir drafts. Film will be screened in German/English, & subtitled in English. "Sobering & profoundly eerie, a masterful documentary, about political evasion, self-preservation, & the limits of denial." – Kevin Maher/"The Times"

Deutsches Haus Presents:

Edward Branley

Sunday, Sept 20th 4:30 pm

WHEN THE FRENCH QUARTER WAS SICILIAN

Between the 1870s and 1920s, roughly 300,000 Italian immigrants, about 90% of whom were Sicilian, came through the port of New Orleans. In When the French Quarter was Sicilian, local author Edward Branley explores the part of the Quarter known as "Little Palermo" from the 1890s into the 1930s. From the riverfront to the French Market, up into the neighborhood, Edward talks about produce farmers, market vendors, grocers, bakers, restaurant and tavern owners, organized crime, and a well-known ice cream maker.
